

Shipping Your Fresh Flowers

Do not ship fresh flowers if they have already begun to wilt. Dry them first. This method is only for very fresh flowers

1) Cut stem to about two inches. Cover the stem in a damp paper towel and place on a sheet of aluminum foil

2) Fold remaining aluminum foil up and roll around the stem.

3) Pinch the top of the foil tight around the stem to keep towel moist. Place on several pieces of Dry paper towel

4) Roll the dry paper towels around the flowers

5) Place the flower in an UNSEALED zip-locked bag. Do not seal bag or petals will mold in transit. Make sure the petals are outside of the bag and only the stem is inside! Repeat process for each type of flowers you would like to send

6) Place flowers in a box with NO plastic or bubble wrap. You can stuff with paper, paper towels, or packing peanuts. Ship using priority mail or any service that takes 3 days or less. Do not request for 'signature required' or shipping may be delayed.

Shipping Your Dry Flowers

Flowers need to be COMPLETELY dry to use this method. To qualify as dry, PETALS MUST BE CRISP WITH NO MOISTURE, otherwise package according to fresh flower instructions.

1. You can simply place your petals into sandwich baggies. Since the petals are already dry, there is no need to put them into paper towels.
2. If you are sending multiple colors of petals and do not want them all mixed, place them in a separate bag per color.
3. Please mark the outside of your bag with your name and order number.

Shipping Your Few Fresh Petals

If you have just a few fresh petals and do not wish to send the whole flowers, you can ship according to these instructions.

- Place your petals in a single layer between a folded piece of paper towel.
- Write your name and order number on the paper towel.
- Package in a box or manila envelope (NOT A BUBBLE MAILER). Be sure there is no plastic of any kind in packaging or petals will mold in transport.
